FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NEW DEPARTURE ROOM FACILITIES AT YLW

Nobody likes to wait – but with the terminal expansion at Kelowna International Airport now complete, waiting in the Departures Lounge will be more enjoyable than ever before. With the new pre-board screening area and four security lines in operation, passengers will be processed through security faster and have time to enjoy a variety of new services post security.

In addition to the coffee shop and souvenir gallery already in place, departing passengers will now be able to sit down for a meal at the new White Spot at the Airport restaurant, browse through a selection of VQA wines at the Wine Cellar store and let their children play in the play area.

“All of these additions are really just added comfort and service for our passengers” says interim Airport General Manager Sam Samaddar. “In particular, we are pleased to welcome White Spot to our facility. As a restaurant, White Spot has a long, proud tradition in British Columbia and is committed to providing customers with quality food at reasonable prices – two concepts that I believe our passengers will appreciate.”

The attractive new restaurant will seats 91 people and will feature most of the popular menu items available at any White Spot.

Formerly located in the main concourse, the Wine Cellar has moved to the departures area but will still feature VQA products from various Okanagan wineries. All passengers can purchase wines for gifts or mementos which will be a nice complement to the duty free store which is available for international travelers.
